

OLIVER WELTER

SCREENWRITER

More than 100 episodes of sitcom (headwriting included) in way over 15 seasons, numerous episodes of serial drama, several primetime crime-movies and three published crime novels. In over 25 years of working in the entertainment business Oliver Welter put some weight in his backpack called vita.

He knows about comedy, crime AND drama and all the moments of hard writing routine, boundless euphoria, deepest despair... and the gratitude of having a job that lets you experience all this.

Oliver Welter might be the last street kid among the TV-writers. No bachelor's or master's degree from a renowned film school, but eyes and ears for people and stories, some talent in dealing with words, a touch of naive determination and tons of true passion and dedication. And the strong believe of not having seen it all yet.

„You want something? Go, get it!“ is certainly not a motto for your kid's career day in Junior Highschool, but the essence of Oliver Welter's personality. And the reason why he returns to his desk every morning with a smile in his face. Excited to see what kind of story life will pull out of it's hat today.
