WRITER

Carolyn writes stories about people who don't quite fit into their world - and who find their place precisely within that tension. Stories in which the strange feels familiar and the familiar turns strange.

Born in 1992 in Germany's Black Forest, raised in the Palatinate and by Lake Constance, and later shaped by time spent in international environments, she learned early on that identity is not fixed, but something that moves, reshapes itself, and is sometimes lost along the way. This experience runs through her work: characters navigating between possibilities, between closeness and freedom, between the desire to belong and the fear of settling.

Carolyn has a keen sense for emotional turning points and for the questions beneath the surface: What if I had chosen differently? What if there is more than just this one reality? Her stories revolve around identity, relationships, and alternative ways of living - sometimes closely grounded in our world, sometimes just a step beyond.

Her work features characters such as an eternal vampire student refusing to grow up, teenagers searching for dark matter, or a time-shifter trying to prevent the end of the future. The fantastical is never an end in itself, but a lens through which her characters' inner lives come into focus.

After a long career as an international model, she returned to writing and to what has always accompanied her: a precise observation of people. As a mother of two daughters, her perspective also turns to questions of origin and the subtle forces that shape a life. Her projects move between romance, mystery, science fiction and drama, and are aimed particularly at a young audience with a sensitivity for atmosphere and emotional depth.
